Proper Work Procedures & Practices in T&T Organizations

Only two out of five employees (41%) think that their organization has the proper work procedures and practices for getting work done efficiently and effectively, while almost a third (32%) think otherwise. 27% have no opinion.

Frontline employees, who work with their organization's procedures and practices on a daily basis, are sometimes the best people to suggest how to improve those procedures and practices. Does your organization have a mechanism for getting employees' suggestions for improving their work?
